History

Est. 1999

Maggies is the oldest women's organization on campus.

A name reclaimed

In 1963, when women and people of color were first admitted into TAMU, female students were called “Maggies”, a term that diminished women to second class students, implying they weren’t real Aggies.

In 1999, our co-founders chose the name Maggies to “honor the pioneering women who paved way for future female students.”
